

I have sent this last week twice & did expect it & have heard from you ever of them by this time but am not so fortunate. I have a second time is great, although I am bent on considering. meet with Mr. S. who has been asked shall pass by this shipper, 189. & for me this is I would not be so tedious in my relation of what he says to answer me in all things. you can decide for you & I may believe he leaves nothing. I'm sure so he did & can believe in you; & I really believe his intent is very real & with the very diligent in the way of abiding you will service in I would say for Mr. S. he expresses him self in a family. & I believe him in all things. I am sure he wants no with nor address. not any thing to mention this affair in the money. & by reason of the paper pa-wardness to pay them. I make him a word of the next all incapable of putting him self forward in their affeion. for he is in debt at a most shame, whether he is on with me to go till he has paid them. & therefore, he can remove his intimacy with these people that are in a condition to do him good as to his business, as well. I idence for the going out & coming in of ships & the like. & to make him self more able to serve his why he thinks it best to quit his library in the that he may not be so far from those places where such services may be procured, you will find with the papers say so. I have sent in his own hand because you may be a better agent & thought he will not make of any thing of the new word in I have meant and in that proper I carried, & where off these of his are answering every particular. yet I say he has to me. & not I do. I suppose may be credited out his hand & foot. for I speak this to let you know how necessary both for you & to answer me capable of doing you service. Ask he Vow is his only Aime. & I am Certaine could he, ether wise do it. I need the to these places where his presence is needed and for (service) he would do: & do any thing to give you my proofe of his new zeale to serve you: but he is wholly unable to do without they either should pay him (w^{ch} they will not heare by do. For you send him a supply. & if sooner you do will be. & better for you Cotton says he knows it will be for y^r advantage. That he should w^{ch} is the speeche he can apply himself to these people & places is heare he may grow wiser than is. & I suppose I neede say no more as to that. nor urge the necessity of his sudden supply: for you are sensible what is or is not. so he can to money or without it.

Cotton is not willing to do any thing in the world of any kind more without y^r consent & thought. I have advised him to say all things of that Nature to you himself. yet he will not at this time do so. I need more desirous to heare w^t you say of this: be fore he speaks any thing more. Truly he said me tell you y^t if you thought it not fit he should address himself to I shales. w^{ch} he quiths 38 as he intended to do for y^r perfformance of w^t they have a long promise him. that then he will do it. how ever he is needed to Act nothing for them or against them but not you shall give y^r opinion of. But this course he rather chuses that he may be in a Capasity of doing you service, though possibly had he done so w^{ch} you will say all ways give him all the in command that may be: try of visiting to him by me for he will trust no body but me: & so the answer made of all it I have said to him. I thought I know he does believe, yet I desire he may be assured by you & that he may surely believe in Christ & meet as I hope we you would have him; let him: first be assured of his pardon: & when you have it with only - he will tell you it shall be done with all I have he will have it. May I or think with all I speak of these things; & do not but your neglect of any thing create a doubt in him: I am kind I hope from you would him, he all
